Case - Timothy N. Pfeiffer,
Subject - Homicide, New Brunswick, N.J.
Operative - 312.

312/Rinehardt

November 16, 1922. Continuing on the above matter, Operative reported at the plant of the International Motor Co., New Brunswick, N.J., for work, at 7 a.m.

Operative made several efforts during the day to induce Fred Rinehart to discuss the Hall-Mills Case. One of Rinehart's fellow-workers passed a remark concerning the Case, to Rinehart, and Rinehart replied, "I am not going to tell anybody anything, I don't know anything about it; I have been bothered so much by reporters and other people that I am not going to answer any questions to anyone."

Upon leaving the plant of the International Motor Co. at the close of the day, Operative proceeded to his room, changed his clothes, and after supper proceeded to the pool room on George Street.

As there was very little stirring at the pool room, Operative left the pool room and located on the corner of George & Albany Sts.

While at the above mentioned locality, Operative became acquainted and entered into conversation with a young woman by the name of Annie Walsh. Operative accompanied Annie Walsh to the theatre.

While in conversation with Annie Walsh, Operative learned that she was employed at Johnson & Johnson. Miss Walsh informed Operative that she knew Schneider's father, as he worked at Johnson & Johnson also. Miss Walsh told Operative that there was a girl who worked at the plant with her, who was a friend of Mrs. Gibson, and that she (Annie Walsh) overheard this girl remark to other girls in the place, how Mrs. Gibson intended to put it all over them when the case came up, and that Mrs. Gibson was getting something from the Officials. Miss Walsh said that this girl told her that Mrs. Gibson knew the people that were up there that night, and that the people who were there knew that Mrs. Gibson knew it, but that they did not treat Mrs. Gibson
